Dear Friends,

On behalf of the Commonwealth of Virginia, congratulations on the groundbreaking of the new campus for the Judeo-Christian Outreach Center (JCOC). What a tremendous step forward for JCOC and its mission to empower homeless families and individuals!

The transformation of the current center significantly enhances JCOC's capacity to help people in crisis become self-supporting, productive members of our community. In particular, the new construction of 38 affordable housing units provides more opportunities for unhoused men and women to move into permanent homes and maintain the dignity of living independently. The project also offers invaluable support spaces that create a more inviting and vibrant environment, from improved dining areas supporting the critical Community Dinner, Food Pantry, and Family Food Box programs to better administrative spaces where staff will work with residents to realize their full potential. JCOC should be proud of the efforts that went into realizing the vision for this new campus, including the successful Help.Hope.Healing Capital Campaign, that so wonderfully expressed the commitment to philanthropy that defines Virginia.

The First Lady and I wish you a joyous and meaningful groundbreaking celebration. We thank the many volunteer groups, churches, synagogues, civic groups, and individuals who have partnered with JCOC to serve their neighbors over the last three decades. We wish JCOC all the best in the future and thank you for strengthening the Spirit of Virginia!

Sincerely,
